BEFORE YOU BEGIN

A few words first

About this journal

Calm Wings is a self-reflection journal for general wellbeing. It is not medical advice, diagnosis, or treatment, and it supports, not replaces, care from a licensed professional. If something in here doesn't feel right for you, skip it.

If you need help now

In the US	Call or text 988 (Suicide & Crisis Lifeline), or text HOME to 741741. Free and confidential, 24/7.
Emergency	Call 911, or your local emergency number, if you or someone else is in danger.
Outside the US	Find a free helpline in your country at findahelpline.com.

Please keep it personal

This journal is for your own use. Please don't copy, scan, or share its pages beyond your household. If you'd like to use it with a group, class, or clients, contact us and we'll talk about it.

Thank you for supporting a small, independent publisher.

What to write with

Pens and gel pens work on every page. Colored pencils work best on the coloring pages.

Welcome

Dear friend,

This journal is for the heavy days and the lighter ones. It's a place to set your thoughts down, notice what helps, and be a little kinder to yourself along the way.

You only need about five minutes a day. Fill in a daily page, color for a while, or turn to the SOS Toolkit when things feel like a lot. There's no right way to do this.

Skipped days are fine. Missed a whole week? Also fine. Pick up wherever you are and keep going. Nothing in here is graded, and nobody is checking.

Butterflies don't change overnight. They change a little at a time, in their own season. You can, too.

How anxiety works

Your built-in alarm

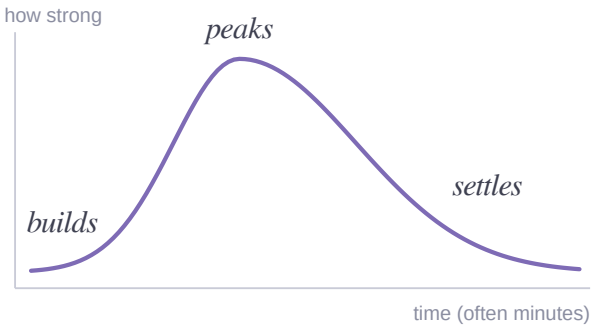

Your body has an alarm system. When it senses danger, it gets you ready to act: your heart beats faster, your breathing quickens, your muscles tighten, and your mind scans for what could go wrong. This is the fight, flight, or freeze response, and it has kept people safe for a very long time.

Why it goes off when you're safe

The alarm is built to be fast, not precise. It can't always tell a real threat from a stressful email, a crowded room, or a 'what if' thought at 2 AM, so it goes off anyway. That doesn't mean something is wrong with you. It means your alarm is sensitive and working hard to protect you.

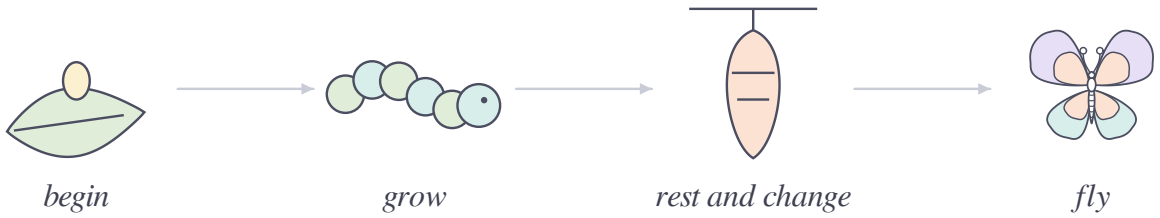

It passes

Anxiety can feel like it will keep climbing forever, but it doesn't. Like a wave, it builds, peaks, and settles, often within minutes, especially when you breathe slowly and let it be there instead of fighting it. Each time you ride one out, your brain learns a little more that you can handle it.

The butterfly part

A caterpillar doesn't become a butterfly in one leap. There's a quiet in-between stage where a lot is changing that no one can see yet. Working on anxiety can feel like that. Some days it will seem like nothing is happening. Keep going. Change is often quiet before it shows.

When to get more help

This journal can help with everyday worry. Sometimes anxiety needs more support than a notebook can give, and that's okay. Think about talking to a doctor or therapist if:

- Worry or panic gets in the way of work, school, sleep, or relationships most days.
- You're avoiding more and more places, people, or things you used to enjoy.
- Panic attacks happen often, or you're scared of having the next one.
- You're leaning on alcohol, drugs, or other habits to get through the day.
- Your mood has been low for two weeks or more, or nothing feels enjoyable.
- It has been going on for a while and isn't easing, even with the tools in here.

Get help right away if

- You have thoughts of hurting yourself or ending your life.
- You feel unsafe, or you're not sure you can keep yourself safe.

If you or someone else is in immediate danger, call 911.

Asking for help is a strong, sensible thing to do. It is not a failure, and you don't have to wait until things are at their worst.

Key to the pages

Here's what you'll find and where. Use what helps; skip what doesn't.

SOS Toolkit page 9

Turn here when anxiety spikes. Breathing, grounding, and calming tools.

Daily pages from page 19

Rate your day, note three good things, untangle one worry, plan one small step. About 5 minutes.

Weekly check-in every 7 days

Look back on the week, log what you handled, then color your reward butterfly.

Monthly pages after days 30, 60, 90

Color your mood butterfly, track habits, and write yourself a kind letter.

Building Confidence page 157

Tools for facing fears a little at a time, sleep, values, and worry time.

Look Back page 165

See how far you've come and plan what's next.

How to fill things in Rating circles: fill in or color the number that fits. 0 = none, 10 = the most.

Checkboxes: tick what you did. Blank boxes are not failures.

Lines: write as much or as little as you like. A word counts.

SOS TOOLKIT

When anxiety hits, start here

Go one step at a time. You can stop as soon as you feel a little steadier.

Breathe

pages 10 and 11

Slow your breathing first. Try box breathing, or breathe in for 4 and out for 6. A longer out-breath helps your body settle.

page 12

Come back to the room you're in. Name 5 things you see, 4 you can feel, 3 you hear, 2 you smell, and 1 you taste.

Color or move

page 16

Give your hands and body something to do. Color a page, stretch, walk, or shake out your arms and legs.

Write

pages 14 and 15

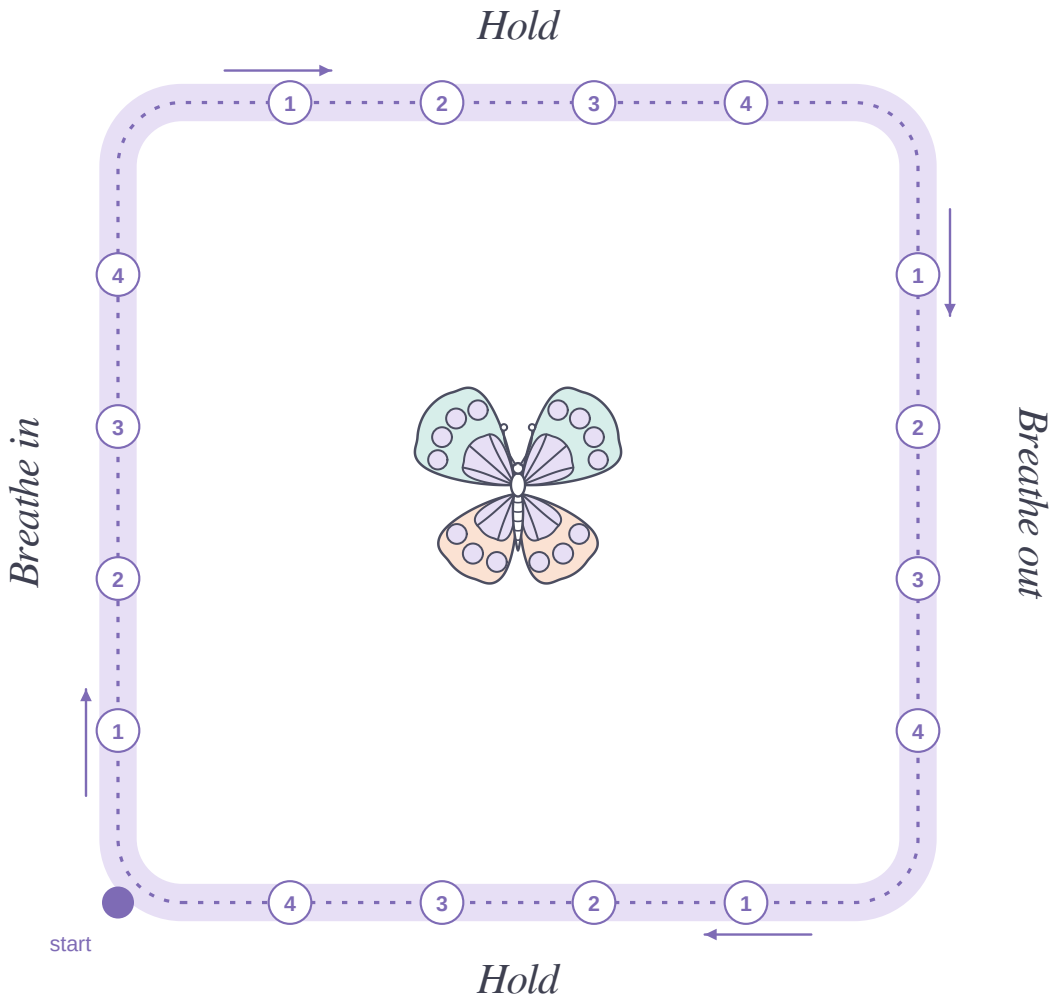

Once the wave settles a little, write it out. The thought record or the worry tree can help you untangle it.

Feeling unsafe? Call or text 988, any time.

Box breathing

Trace the square with a finger or pen. Each side is four slow counts. Start at the dot and follow the arrows.

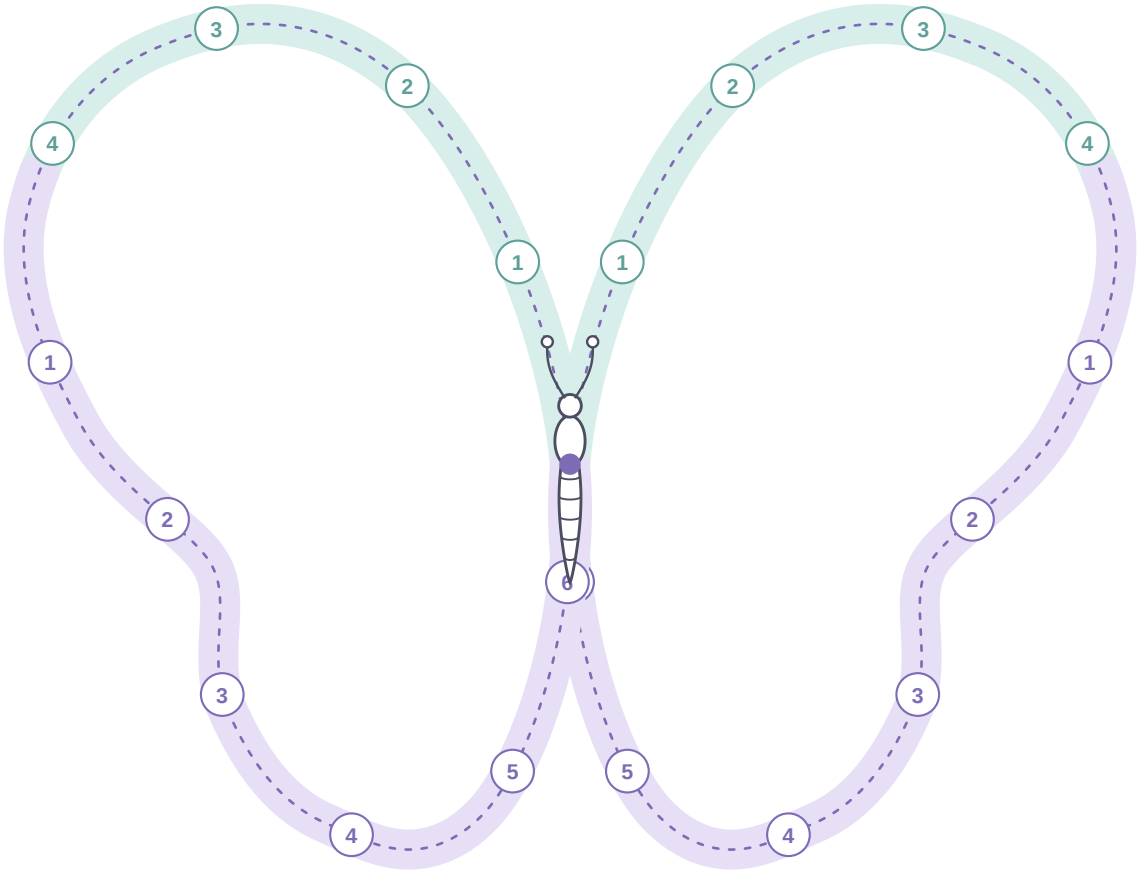

Go around four times, or for as long as it feels good. If holding your breath feels uncomfortable, skip the holds and breathe in and out slowly instead.

How I felt before _____ after _____ (0 to 10)

Long-exhale breathing

A longer out-breath tells your body it's safe to slow down. Breathe in for 4, out for 6. Trace each wing: in as you travel up and out, out as you glide back around to the body.

Do one wing, then the other. Five rounds is plenty. If 4 and 6 feel too long, try 3 and 5. What matters is that the out-breath is longer than the in-breath.

5-4-3-2-1 grounding

When your mind is racing ahead, bring it back to right here. Go slowly and notice the small details: colors, textures, quiet sounds.

5 things I can see

4 things I can feel or touch

3 things I can hear

2 things I can smell

1 thing I can taste, or one slow breath

Now I feel

Progressive muscle relaxation

Tense each part of your body for about 5 seconds, then let it go for about 10 seconds and notice the difference. Tense gently. It should never hurt. Sitting or lying down both work.

My favorite calming audio a song, playlist, podcast, or guided recording that helps me relax

1	Hands	Make tight fists. Hold, then let your fingers fall open.
2	Arms	Bend your elbows and tighten your upper arms. Hold, then let them drop.
3	Shoulders	Lift your shoulders up toward your ears. Hold, then let them sink down.
4	Face	Scrunch your eyes and nose. Hold, then let your forehead and jaw go soft.
5	Belly	Take a breath and tighten your stomach. Hold, then breathe out and let it go.
6	Legs	Press your knees together and tighten your thighs. Hold, then relax.
7	Feet	Curl your toes down. Hold, then let them spread and rest.
8	Whole body	One big breath in, and a long, slow breath out. Let everything go heavy.

Stay still for a minute when you're done. Notice where you feel warmer, heavier, or looser.

How I felt before _____ after _____ (0 to 10)

The worry tree

Worries feel urgent, but they're not all the same kind. This helps you sort them so you know what to do next.

Quick thought record

Thoughts aren't facts. They're quick guesses your brain makes, often when you're tired or stressed. Writing one down helps you look at it from a little further away.

What happened? where, when, who

What went through my mind?

How much I believe it _____ /10 Feelings and body _____

What supports the thought?

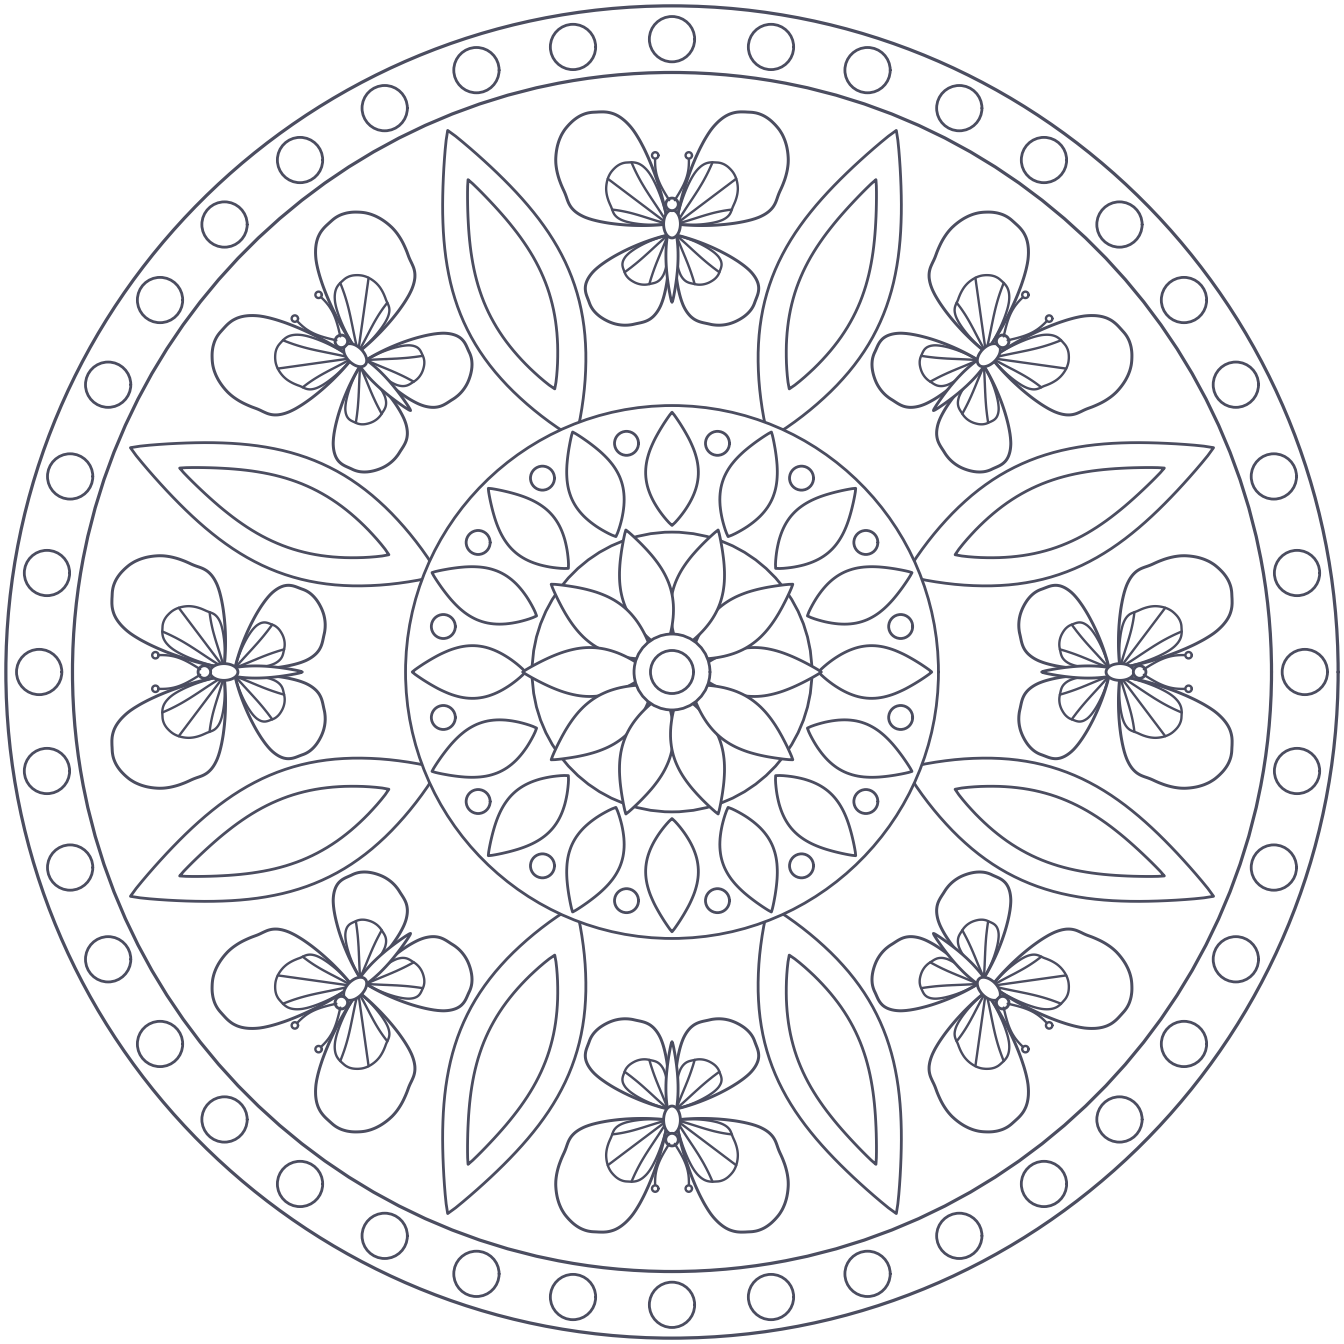

What doesn't fit it?

A more balanced thought what would I tell a friend?

How much I believe the balanced thought _____ /10

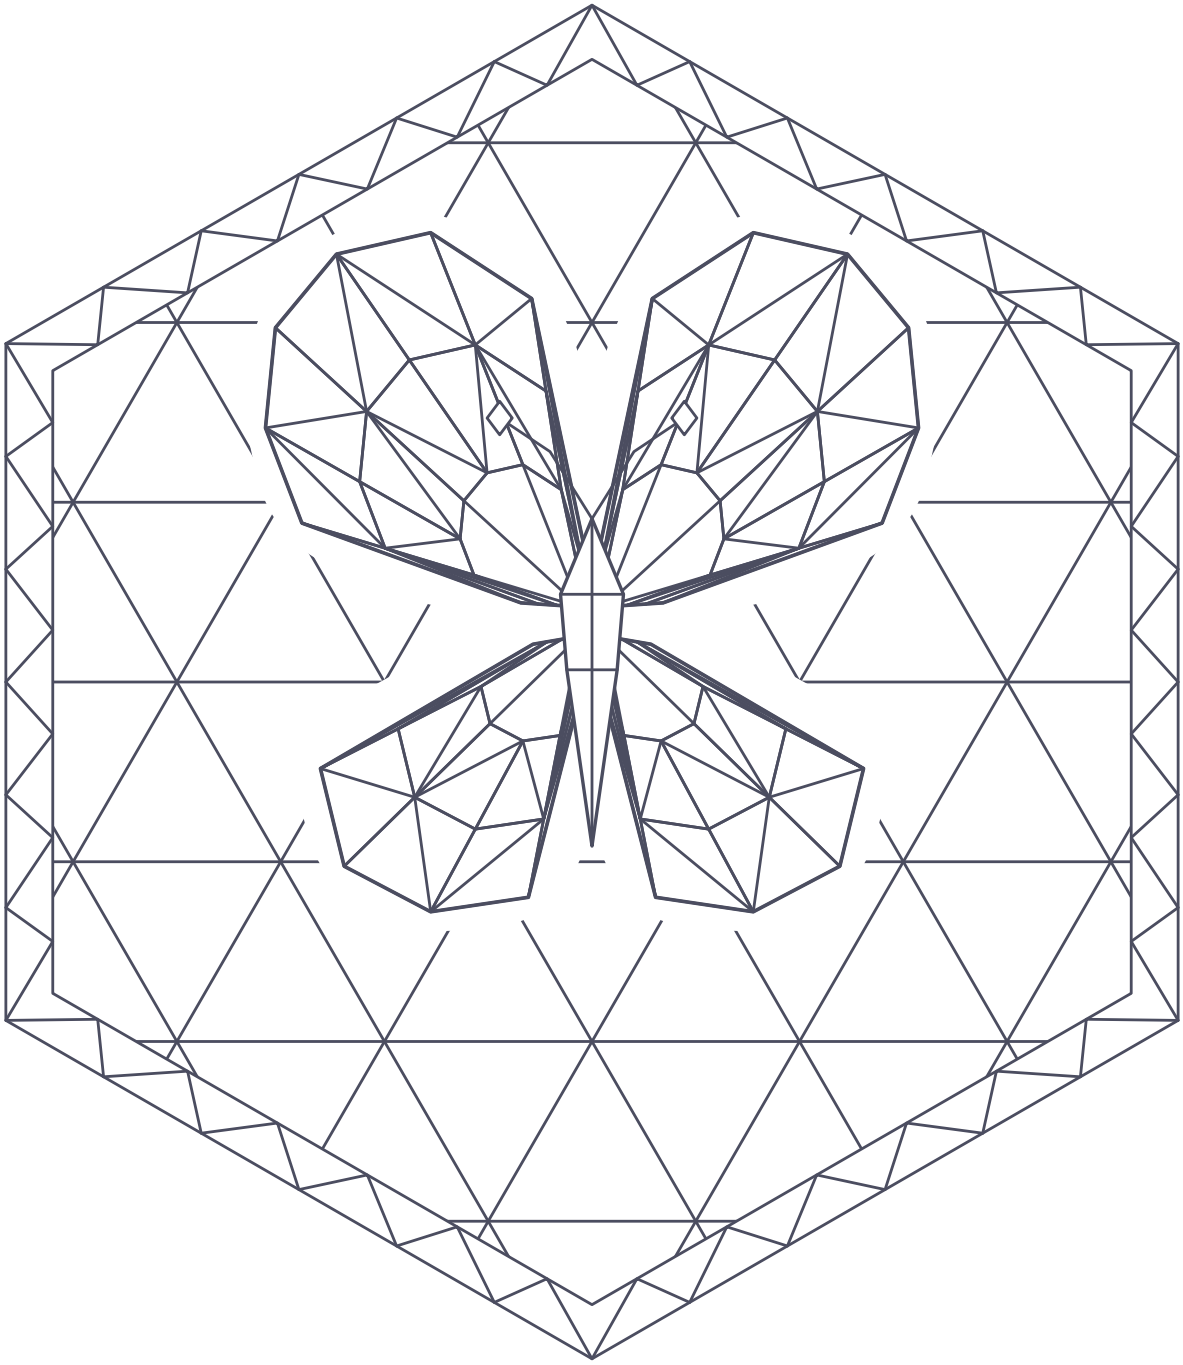

How I feel now _____

Butterfly mandala

No rules. Any colors, any order, stop whenever you like.

Geometric butterfly

No rules. Any colors, any order, stop whenever you like.

This will pass

Gentle words for the hard moments. Read them slowly, out loud if you can. Circle the ones that fit.

This is a wave. It will pass.

I've felt this before, and it eased.

My body is trying to protect me. Right now, I'm okay.

I don't have to fix everything this minute.

Breathe in. Breathe out slowly. Again.

I can feel anxious and still be safe.

This feeling is uncomfortable. It won't last forever.

I only need to take the next breath.

I can let this thought float by.

It's okay to pause.

I'm doing the best I can, and that's enough.

You made it

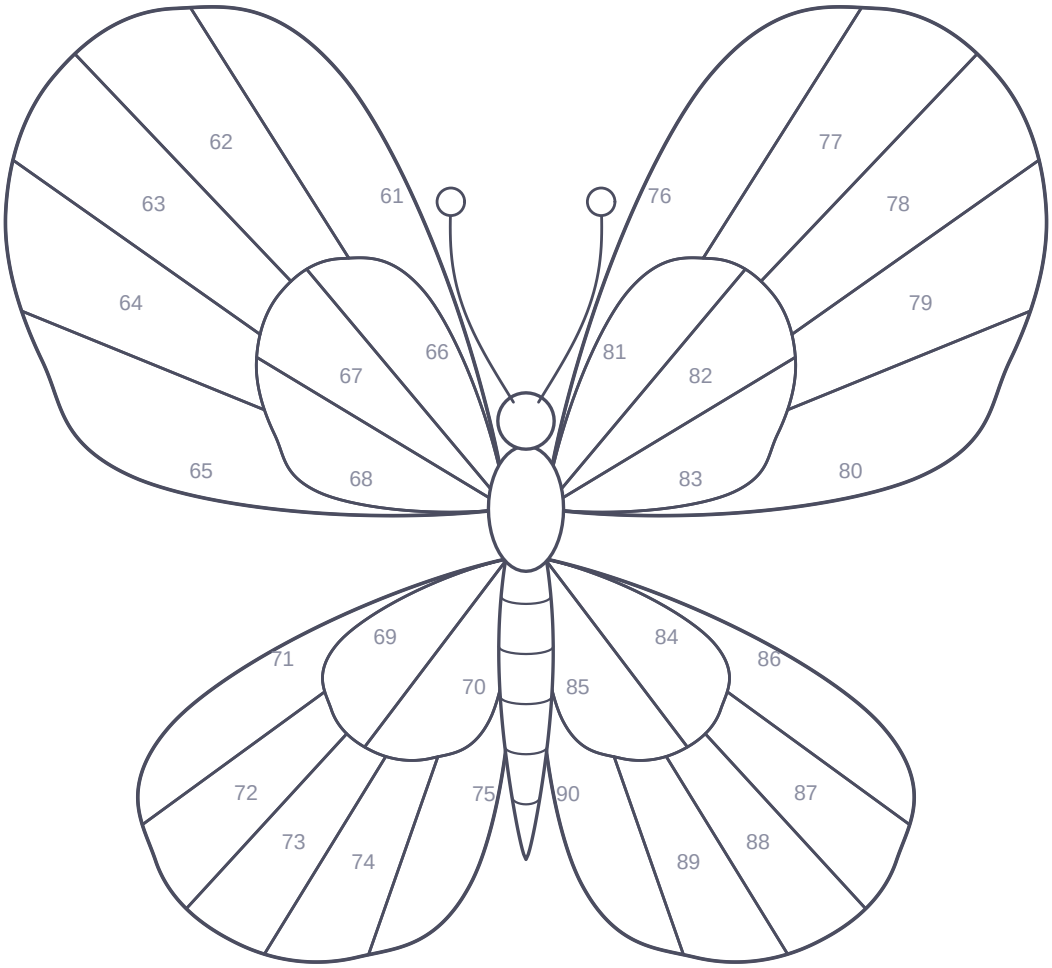

90 days

You finished week 13. Take your time with this one.

MONTH 3

My mood butterfly

Days 61 to 90. Each evening, color the cell for that day in the color that matches your mood.

My color key

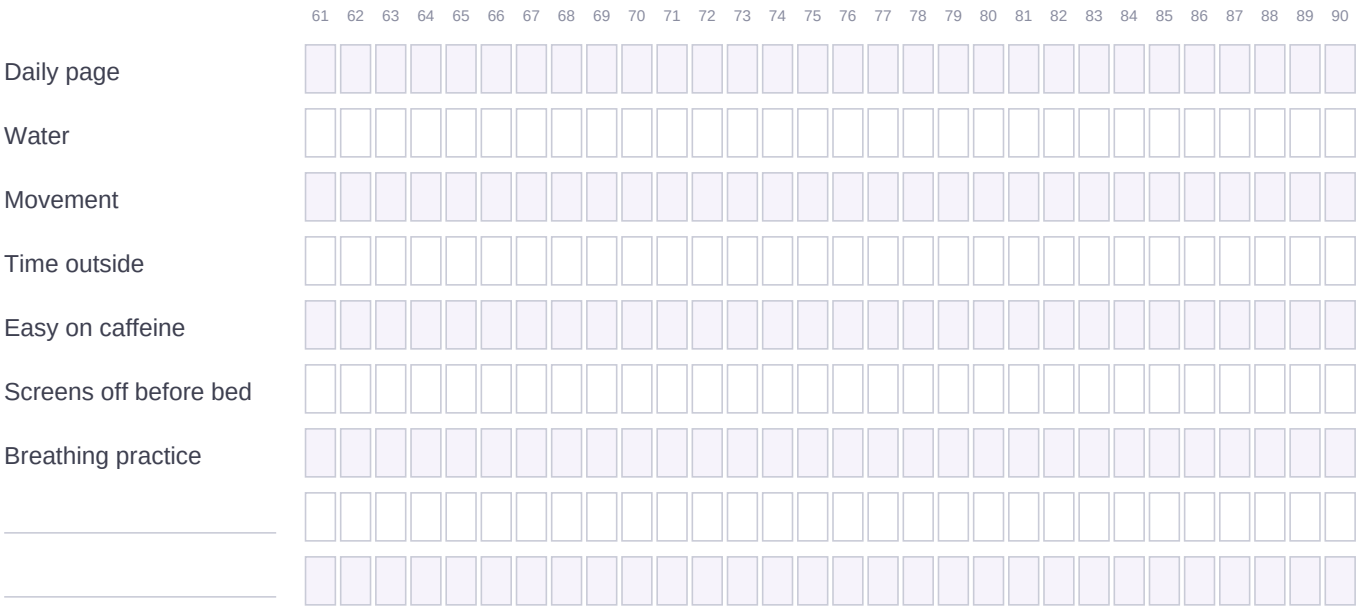

color each circle with the pencil you'll use for that mood

MONTH 3

Habit tracker

Days 61 to 90. Tick or color a square for each day you did it.

What I noticed this month

A habit I want to keep

One to try next month

MONTH 3

A kind letter to myself

Ninety days. Write to the person who opened this journal on Day 1. What would you tell your Day 1 self, now that you know what these months held?

Dear me,

With love,

My fear ladder

Pick something anxiety makes you avoid. Break it into small steps, from a little uncomfortable at the bottom to the goal at the top. Then climb one rung at a time, staying with each step until it feels easier.

For bigger fears, work through this with a therapist.

My goal _____

Fear ladder progress

Each time you practice a step, jot it down. Fear usually drops the more you repeat it.

Things that lift me

A menu to order from when you're low or wound up. Fill it in on a good day, so it's ready on a hard one.

Quick bites

5 minutes or less · e.g. a song I love, cold water on my face

Mains

15 to 30 minutes · e.g. a walk, a shower, a show that makes me laugh

Shared plates

with other people · e.g. call a friend, coffee with someone I love

Specials

when I have more time · e.g. a day trip, a craft project

Sleep wind-down

A calm last hour helps your body get the message that it's time to rest. Tick the ones you want to try. You don't need all of them.

- [ ] Dim the lights about an hour before bed
- [ ] Screens off, or at least set to night mode
- [ ] A warm shower or bath
- [ ] Herbal tea or warm milk (no caffeine after lunch)
- [ ] Write tomorrow's to-do list so it's out of my head
- [ ] A few minutes of slow breathing
- [ ] Read something light, on paper
- [ ] Stretch or do the muscle relaxation on page 13
- [ ] Keep the room cool, dark, and quiet
- [ ] Same bedtime, most nights

Brain dump

Empty your head onto the page so it doesn't keep you up. Lists, worries, reminders, anything.

What matters to me

Anxiety tends to shrink life down to what feels safe. Values pull it back out toward what matters. Circle the words that feel true for you, and add your own.

family	friendship	kindness	honesty
creativity	faith	health	learning
adventure	calm	fun	independence
courage	nature	beauty	growth
helping others	security	humor	loyalty
rest	gratitude	patience	home

Worry time

Worry time is a short daily appointment for your worries, about 15 minutes at the same time each day. When a worry pops up outside that time, jot it down and tell yourself, "Not now, later." When worry time comes, look at the list. Many worries will have shrunk or gone. For the ones left, use the worry tree. Try not to schedule it right before bed.

My worry time _____ Where _____

Date	The worry	Saved for later?	Did it still matter?

Open page

Write about whatever is weighing on you. Don't worry about spelling or making sense. Write for 10 to 15 minutes, then close the book and do something kind for yourself.

Open page

Write about a time you felt calm and safe. Where were you? What could you see, hear, and feel? Come back to this page when you need to visit that place again.

LOOK BACK

90-day check

Rate how things feel now, then turn back to page 5 and compare with where you started. Any change counts, even a small one.

Anxiety	0 calm	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10 very anxious

LOOK BACK

A letter to my future self

Write to yourself a year from now. What do you want to remember about these 90 days? What do you hope you're doing by then? What should future you keep in mind if anxiety gets loud again?

Dear future me,

Date _____

LOOK BACK

Keep going

Ninety days is a real accomplishment, whether you filled in every page or only some of them. Look at what you've learned about your own patterns and what helps you.

Anxiety may still show up sometimes. That's normal, and it doesn't erase your progress. When it does, come back to the tools that worked for you. You can start a fresh journal, keep the habits that helped, and lean on your people.

If you've been thinking about talking to a therapist or doctor, now is a good time. You've already done a lot of the noticing, and these pages can help you explain what you've been going through.
